Oxenhope's weekly newsletter for children

Hi everyone. I hope that where ever you are doing your learning you are safe and well. I am going to be sending out a weekly newsletter to you all which will give you lots of information and guidance as well as things to do and competitions, so I hope you enjoy it !

Our question of the week:

I am at home do I need to do my learning?

Since the start of January, the UK is in a national lockdown. This means that the Government want to help keep as many people safe and stop people catching coronavirus and stop them needing to go to hospital. Boris Johnson closed school to most children. Some children are still going to school and some are at home. If you are doing your learning at home it is just as important to complete your tasks as if you are at school, you are not on holiday. Your teachers are checking daily to see if your learning has been done and they might ring you up to see how you are getting on. Lots of parents have told me that some of you are refusing to do your work and you must remember that learning is important if you are at school or at home. Your education is precious and this is your learning time. You must complete your learning activities unfortunately it is not a choice.

Please read on in the newsletter for tips about home learning

Getting on at home during Lockdown

During lockdown you might have noticed that your parents and carers may be stressed and you might be to. This is very normal. Parents might be short tempered or have less time for you. This is because some of them are also working at home. You must listen to you parents and talk to them if you are feeling anxious or upset. Try and do somethings together when you can. Please consider your parents feelings and try to help them.
